There is no metadata that is safe from iScrub it will find everything from past document author information, to tracked changes, deleted text and any other metadata that you want to keep hidden from whoever you are sending the document to via email or any other method of sharing your Office files.. To do this, simply run the mdls command in the following manner There are many different keys you can use, some of which may be unique for a specific file type, but the following list is some of the potentials (by no means all of them) and common ones that you might find used.. You can clear the title, author and so on, for instance; reset details such as the total editing time or revision count; clear the Last Edited By and Last Saved Date tags, remove the revision log, and more.. There are any number of file type specific metadata utilities, for video, audio and graphics files, but I can find no app on MacUpdate that works on all file types.
